

Life is arriving fresh in each instant, but has the semblance of continuity—like water when it's flowing fast appears to be a permanent river, like a sparkler when you whirl it around your head appears to be a continuous circle of light.